Review of: "Factors contributing to labour unrest at the garment factories in Bangladesh: A cross-sectional study"

Pushpendra Singh[1]

1 Somaiya Vidyavihar

1. The methodology appears robust, and the study is well-positioned to contribute valuable insights into the factors influencing labour unrest in the garment industry. However, it would be helpful if the authors could provide more context and details about the dataset's sources and data collection methods. Additionally, the discussion on potential limitations of the study and methods to address them could further strengthen the section.

2. In the discussion section, discuss the practical implications of the findings for the garment industry in Bangladesh. How can the industry stakeholders address the identified factors and reduce labour unrest?

3. While the limitations are mentioned, further discussion on how these limitations may impact the study's generalizability and validity would be valuable. Additionally, suggest potential avenues for future research to build upon the current study's findings.

4. Carefully proofread the manuscript to correct any grammatical errors, typos, or inconsistencies.