The research is very interesting. However, I believe they should include some updated research in the introduction since the most recent ones are from 2013, which is already a decade ago. On the other hand, the conclusions are quite repetitive, very similar to the last paragraphs of the first section of the manuscript. They should focus more on the reflections derived from the proposed research. Finally, regarding the citation format, it is not very clear if they are following APA 7 style. If so, in the body of the text, for a work with two authors, they should separate their names with an ampersand (&) in a parenthetical citation or with "and" in a narrative citation. If, on the contrary, it has three or more authors, they should include the last name of the first author, followed by "et al.," which means and others.
