

Review of: "Antimicrobial Ayurveda Crops as Superfoods for Export, Conservation & Farmers' Benefit"

Ashish Sengar¹

¹ Indian Institute of Technology Delhi

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The article indeed is interesting and is on a very important topic. However, the structure of the article is not like that of a standard scientific article, and more information should be provided in the discussion section to give a clear understanding to the readers.

- The abstract fails to show the key findings/data of the study. This should be present; merely writing the significance of the research is not sufficient.
- The authors should proofread the article to correct the consistency of the sentences/grammar.
- The introduction section is a bit lengthy (considering the overall length of the article). The authors should make it concise.
- The authors should also write a clear conclusion section. It should highlight the importance and the key findings that the authors got after studying the 'Ayurveda crops'.