The study is very interesting and touches on a little-studied topic in the migration literature. It focuses on why/how individuals stay in their places despite adverse conditions.

I recommend that the summary should be rewritten to make the study more understandable. Additionally, the research question(s) of the study should be included in the introduction. The methodology of the study should be clear, and the implication part should be clearly expressed in the conclusion. It would be appropriate to keep the literature limited to the literature on the subject.

Please also consider that quotations should be made according to the writing style used.
