Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The manuscript evaluates the impact of safety training, traffic management, equipment maintenance, personal protective equipment, and communication on road construction quality using a multiple linear regression model with data from 178 samples. Concerns include insufficient sources in the empirical analysis, lack of information on scale creation, errors in tables, and missing reliability values. Theoretical and practical contributions need emphasis, along with limitations and suggestions for future research. The author needs to include detailed information about the study region and update the literature review. Overall, the article is good.
