

Review of: "A Survey: Looking for the best possible way of modern engagement with Traditional Indian knowledge"

Karen Haydock<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Homi Bhabha Centre for Science Education

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

One major problem with this paper is that "Traditional Indian knowledge" is not defined. There have been many different (and contradictory) types of Indian philosophies at different times and places - and even at any one time and place.

The authors do not discuss the relevance or significance of conducting this survey.

It would be helpful to discuss in greater detail how and why the different philosophies in India and in the west have not been adequately compared and how colonialism prevented such comparisons.

See notes added to the pdf.