Overall, this article is well-written and well-organized. It seems like a novel topic, specifically for those interested in the Gamification Approach. However, some modifications related to the writing style can be applied. For example, the following sentence can be revised into a simpler one which would be more reader-friendly:

“The research method in the stage of production of sample content was experimental...”

Also, it is suggested to revise the paper based on APA style.

In general, the content is very interesting.
