This article raises a very vital and important issue about children's urban life. However, some corrections should be made in this article in order to be sufficient for publication.

1. Abstract : please add the sample specification (such as age or gender , ...) and method of choosing the respondents.
2. Introduction: It seems that the section consist the introduction and literature review. please add the literature review section based on the main variables of study to express their conceptual and operational definitions.
3. Methodology : doing research about children is tough and requires attention to delicate and sensitive issues. According to the opinion of experts in this field, the interpretation of children's drawings and maps should be accompanied by their storytelling.
4. Analysis: this section also should be divided to analysis, results, discussion. The method and process of analysing data (coding and categorizing , ...) should be explained. discussion should be made based on comparing the results with literature review findings.
5. Conclusion : It should include limitations and future research recommendations and could be more concise.
