

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Pulmonary arterial hypertension associated with HIV infection

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base. Pulmonary arterial hypertension associated with HIV infection. ORPHA:275808

Pulmonary arterial hypertension (PAH, see this entry) associated with HIV infection (PAH-HIV) is a form of PAH characterized by elevated pulmonary arterial resistance leading to right heart failure observed as a complication of HIV infection.