First of all, I would like to thank the author for this publication. It is original and tackle a real problem which most PhD Candidates have to face in order to defend their thesis. My main observations are:-

- (1) The problem statement is clear and provide an interesting insight on the topic to be discussed within the text.
- (2) The way the questions and answers are presented are also very pertinent.
- (3) Another section which could be added to this would be “General tips” explaining candidates the importance of other skills such as a good eye contact with the panel among others.

Overall, the supervisors have a role to play in the preparation of the candidates to face the panel but such document may help to build trust in the PhD Candidate and deliver a great Viva Voce!
