Dear author,

Thank you for sharing your concept paper for review. You made a great effort and it was a pleasure to read about the developing country perspective you take. The paper improved a lot in the latest version, and as a consequence, some of the comments I prepared became redundant. I can endorse comments provided by other reviewers. In addition, I could provide you with my comments to further improve your paper:

- 1 You should bring the research gap to the readers' attention already in the introduction.
- 2 The paper would become more impactful by testing the propositions in a case study research. This would require also a methodology and result section. Maybe you can make an argued selection of developing countries for a comparative study of the ecosystem elements.

Thank you for taking my review comments into consideration.
