

Review of: "Analysis method of binary concentration-inhomogeneous systems"

Rafael Catarino

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I have read the work of Alexander Levinsky, it seems like an interesting work, but I have two doubts: the first, why in Fig. 1 are values not shown on the axes and the respective units of measurement for $C(T)$ and T ?; Second, in the temperature range (glass transition) considered by the author, thermodynamically, can a phase diagram between both homogeneous and inhomogeneous systems be visualized?