

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Congenital bowing of long bones

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base. Congenital bowing of long bones. ORPHA:2292

Long bone bowing is a congenital condition described by the presence of symmetric or asymmetric angular deformity and shortening of the long bones, particularly the femurs, tibiae and ulnae.