Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The title and intention of the article are very attractive; however, the objectives and methodology should be more clearly synthesized. The close relationship between the ideas developed by the author, based on recommendations from expert committees, and how they are established is not evident, and the foundations for the different stages of the research are not clearly established. More than a scientific article, it seems like a personal opinion supported by valid sources, which is interesting. However, the need to follow a more formal methodology could significantly improve the results of the article. I think the topic discussed is interesting and could be improved by defining a stricter methodology and justifying each of the proposed ideas.
