

Review of: "Grandparenting Children With Special Needs and Disabilities: A Narrative Review"

Nigel D'Silva¹

¹ Tata Institute of Social Sciences

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The topic is interesting. The author(s) may want to significantly reduce the entire length of the manuscript to enhance reading and focus. The literature review should ideally be not more than one and a half pages, including the gap analysis. The results and discussion section could also be significantly reduced. The author(s) may want to add "Scope for Future Research" and "Limitations of the Study" sections. The conclusion section could be further elaborated and tied to the results/findings of the study.