

Review of: "Breaking Stereotypes: Sectoral Varicocele Diagnosis Revolutionized by Doppler Ultrasound Advancements"

Leandro Nassar Coutinho

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The study has a great objective, even though it provides information already known to the community.

I believe that the number of patients should be improved since it is a common condition in reproduction clinics. I suggest 300 to 500 positive patients.

Information about the Doppler study method is lacking.

Information about physical examination is missing.

There is a lack of information about symptoms and evolution.

Missing images. Very important for an imaging study.

Which Doppler flowmetry parameters were evaluated?

The discussion cites only two other references. The results need more references.

Yours sincerely,