

Review of: "Fishing Rods for Magic: Theatre Forum Tools to Support Primary School Students' Active Engagement in Computer-Supported Collaborative Storytelling"

Purnima Ahirao<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Somaiya Vidyavihar

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The authors have presented the idea about effective use of computer aided tools for e-learning specifically for story telling to primary students. The idea is good and is the need of the hour as education is expected to operate on an hybrid mode due to rapid digitalization.

These are suggestions to improve the overall presentation of the paper from the context of a reader.

1. The authors need to support the idea of computer supported collaborative storytelling through references assuming that it may not be the authors original idea.
2. table of mapping between ASEMA methodology Pyramid and Theatre forum tools is to be established.
3. comparison table depicting about mapping between the existing methodology and the corresponding proposed theatre forum tools need to be added.
4. A small survey of teachers and students with respect to the usability of the computer aided tools can be added(if Possible).
5. Conclusion should be more specifically in relevance with the abstract.
6. grammarly tool should be used to improve the grammar of the paper
7. The technical writing is good but quillbot tool can be checked once for some more improvement in the paper.