The article needs some modifications as follows:

- The article included personal opinions and judgments without scientific evidence. For example, the abstract stated that the terrorist attacks were "all instigated by Moroccan networks". Another example is what was said about "the clientelistic system" under the title "Corruption and Clientelism".
- The article lacked a precise theoretical definition of the concepts of entrepreneurship, corruption, extremism, and youth.
- The article also contained prior findings without scientific evidence as stated in (5.Starting a business in Morocco) that "corruption in administration continues to be a major impediment to entrepreneurship".
- The article did not provide precise indicators to measure extremism .
