The updated version shows the Authors' significant efforts to improve the manuscript. It is very well written, even if some data from the literature, with the estimation of biomarkers of oxidative stress, still needs to be included. I also still do not see the list of abbreviations. Furthermore, the Authors could update some of their references, and possibly include more works published in the last five years. To sum up, when we take into consideration the amount of time spent with the literature research, the well-choosen theme, and the overall structure of manuscript, in my opinion it can be accepted with high score.
