

Review of: "A Policy Dialogue for Nutrition of Women and Adolescent Girls: Sustainable Development Goals Matters Arising"

Anna Kiss¹

¹ Hungarian Academy of Sciences

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper addresses a highly important topic; however, its added value to the literature is questionable.

The writing style could benefit from improvements in specific instances, and it is recommended to avoid terms such as “wicked problems.”

The introduction lacks in-text citations, and there is a absence of statistical data regarding malnutrition specific to the country.

In addition to pregnant women, it would be worthwhile to highlight the nutritional challenges faced by non-pregnant women. Emphasizing the role of nutritional education across different age groups among the key action recommendations would be beneficial.

Overall, the paper lacks coherence; perhaps it would be worthwhile to review existing policy actions in Rwanda, analyze them in relation to the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), and formulate additional key action points based on this analysis.