The manuscript possesses an empirical nature. The authors used a quantitative approach to collect and analyse data. The focus of the manuscript is the relationship between socioeconomic status of parents and teacher personality. The text is organised into chapters that are typical for this type of research. I received some feedback that necessitated rewriting the manuscript. Each comment is listed below.

1. preferably, the title of this manuscript needs revision, in the title section there is no need to include the location of the research, just write the thing you want to research without mentioning the location of the research.
2. Abstract requires rewriting, because it is still too long and less dense and clear, no need to ramble.
3. the writing in the introductory chapter is good, but it is necessary to add a research hypothesis or research objectives more clearly so that it is easily understood by readers, or add a new sub-chapter on research objectives after the introductory chapter.
4. the methodology writing is not good, in this chapter the writer should write the number of respondents, research tools and data analysis tools used in the study.
5. in the writing and explanation of research results, the writer should add clarity to the answer to the research hypothesis, whether the hypotheses in this study are accepted or rejected, then how the impact and benefits of the results of this study please explain more deeply and in detail so that readers can understand and take lessons from this research as well as possible,

In conclusion, I think this script has a medium level, so please revise it to make it a better script.

Hopefully what I wrote can be useful, thank you.
