

Review of: "A preliminary investigation of what occupational science is doing"

Thomas Fröhlich¹

¹ European Society for Person Centered Healthcare (ESPCH)

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This wisely improved version is now very good to read, and ready to be used for discussing the topics at stance. By applying the term “preliminary”, curiosity for a further article is elicited. Looking forward to also this further paper, I am especially interested in how the problem of a metric versus a semantic worldview arousing in doing occupational therapy will be addressed. Based on the broad knowledge of the authors I am confident this will turn out in an intriguing fashion.