

Review of: "Examining the Ethical and Geopolitical Context of Global Food Security Policy"

Osmond C. Ekwebelem¹

¹ University of Nigeria

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This is an insightful synopsis of a review that aims to provoke critical thought on the subject of food security, with an emphasis on wider ethical and geopolitical issues, given in the abstract. The purpose of the review is to initiate meaningful discourse among policy professionals, researchers, and civic activists about the intricate issues underlying global food security. The reviewer highlights a specific paper titled "Collective Action for Ending a Collective Problem: A Multi-stakeholder Project on Global Food Security," which was released by a Dublin City University team led by Prof. Phillip McDonagh. The review makes clear that the criticisms it contains are aimed at this report, specifically the final version that was published on July 23, 2023. Overall, the abstract does a good job of laying the framework for an informed assessment that will explore significant geopolitical and ethical issues related to food security and encourage candid communication and participation from all parties involved.