

Review of: "A Case Report of Situs Inversus Totalis With Ventricular Septal Defect: Flipped Physiology"

Frank Han¹

¹ University of Illinois at Chicago

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Overall, an excellent description of the case.

I would share two recommendations:

When the ejection fraction is described on MRI, I would mention which ventricle it comes from.

Also, I would add as additional clarification in your initial description that the abdominal situs does not necessarily have to match the thoracic situs. The description of dextrocardia (situs inversus totalis) may give the impression that dextrocardia is always accompanied by situs inversus of the chest and abdomen.