The paper is an original work on an important topic. It will attract attention and be cited by other researchers. However, the manuscript still needs revisions, and the authors need to enhance the problem definition. The authors need to get deeper reviews of the previous works. The paragraphs under "Introduction" need to be restructured to clearly highlight the research objective of the study. Most of the references are too old. It is better to provide more recent references on both global and local studies on the problem statement to emphasize the research gap and the study's relevant contribution to current literature.
