

Review of: "RNA targeting with CRISPR-Cas13a facilitates bacteriophage genome engineering"

Sam Nugen¹

¹ Cornell University

Potential competing interests: The author(s) declared that no potential competing interests exist.

This is a very interesting and well-written submission. Although the method described might pertain to only a select group of phages, the results suggested efficient engineering of the phages targeted. Although I believe the characterization of PhuZ and gp93 did not fit well and could stand alone in a separate submission, the conclusions reached in the manuscript are supported by the reported data.