The method used in the research needs to be better stated in the abstract of the manuscript. Likewise, the abstract was too long, the authors need to paid attention to the word limit admitted by the journals. It is also worth mentioning that the article does not follow the expected structure of a scientific paper, since it does not have chapters dedicated to the theoretical framework or the method. Furthermore, a discussion between emerging and developed countries could be added to the discussion. Final considerations also need to be improved, highlighting the works limitation and contributions to the academy and practitioners.
