Review of: "Use of Digital Platforms Among University Students: A Systematic Literature Review"

Irum Alvi[1]

1 Rajasthan Technical University

The authors may consider the following suggestions to enhance the appeal of their manuscript; they may:

- Consider clarifying what specifically makes previous reviews limited and the specific gaps in existing literature that this study aims to address.
- Narrow the focus of the introduction, emphasizing the specific research problem related to digital platforms in higher education.
- Consider differentiating between various digital platforms in terms of their effectiveness, challenges, and relevance to higher education to provide more nuanced insights.
- Adding more detail to the methodology section, particularly regarding the systematic literature review process and the criteria for selecting and analyzing articles, could enhance clarity.
- Providing more depth and clear examples in the thematic analysis could help to better illustrate how themes were derived from the data.
- Expanding the results and discussion section to include more critical analysis and new insights beyond general findings.
- Exploring the implications of the findings for practice or policy in higher education in more detail.
- Strengthening the conclusion by more clearly summarizing key findings and suggesting practical recommendations based on the research could add value.
- Updating some citations and ensuring they are directly relevant to the core discussion of digital platforms in higher education could strengthen the literature review.
- Aligning the research questions, methodology, and findings more clearly could enhance the overall narrative and contribution of the manuscript to the field. Overall, the manuscript is well-written and comprehensive.