Authors should be congratulated for their work. Alcohol consumption is a looming problem, especially after the COVID-19 outbreak. However, the methodology was robust and the manuscript is well-structured and well-written. However, several observation needs to be raised:

- Are data available on the alcohol consumption history of patients? How much they drink? When were they started?
Which kind of alcohol they drink?
- Are data available on the familiarity of these cancer in this patients' setting?
- Were the sleep disorders precede or follow the onset of alcohol habit?
