

Review of: "Perceived Social Support as a Predictive Factor of Fatigue and Quality of Life Among Healthcare Professionals in Greece"

Foteini Tzavella¹

¹ University of Peloponnese

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Congratulations to the authors for conducting this very interesting study.

The manuscript is very well structured, including all the parts that a scientific paper must have. Specifically, the introduction is enriched with studies relevant to the topic. The aim is clearly written, and the authors have used psychometric tools that are reliable and valid.

The results are well presented with a combination of tables and text. In the discussion, the most important findings are summarized and compared to other research findings of relevant studies. Limitations of the present study are also very well addressed.