The article is interesting and bears significance to livestock discipline. However, the reviewer has following comments for improvements.

1. The data used for this article is old (year 2018). By this time there has been a big change in livestock input-output market. Therefore, findings generalized from this study do not reflect the actual situation.
2. The general statistics and references used in background and discussion is also backdated which needs to be updated.
3. Discussion is not sufficient. Discussion can be separated from results. Unique findings and limitations should be discussed here with recent reference support.
4. A major reversion is needed to make the article publishable.
