Thank you very much for the opportunity to review an interesting and current article. The paper, after minor corrections, is suitable for printing. I recommend:

1) In the introduction, there are no references to the existing literature on the subject. In addition, it is worth adding a few elements, such as the purpose and hypothesis, specifying the study's novelty and the main problems. It would also be good to present the structure of the article.

2) A literature review on the subject should include more items. This one is relatively poor

3) The research implications should be described a bit more clearly

4) At the end, The Authors should add research limitations and show the directions for future research.

The article, after minor corrections, will be interesting and interesting.

Yours faithfully
