This research topic is judged to be interesting and novel. However, in order to publish in your journal, I request the author(s) to revise and supplement the following matters.

First, the author(s) must provide sufficient theoretical basis to establish a research model. Theoretical and literature explanations for the research model and variable selection should be supplemented.

Second, this manuscript requires a clear and sufficient explanation of the purpose and necessity of the study. Additionally, the author(s) must explain what differences there are from existing studies in terms of research methodology, etc.

Third, the author(s) must sufficiently present implications at the policy and academic level based on the research results.
