

Review of: "Politics of Representation in Rural Tourism Micro-Entrepreneurship"

Mardiana Purwaningsih¹

¹ Perbanas Institute

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

A very interesting topic, especially now that rural tourism has become one of the potentials for improving the community's economy. Even though rural areas can be said to have low income, they have a lot of tourism potential which is suitable for urban tourists who want a calm atmosphere as a place to rest.

The research gap and state of the art are well presented; however, some of the references are more than 5 years old. It is necessary to explore the latest references, considering that research for this rural area has been carried out very rapidly recently. Can you provide specific examples of recent studies that could be included to update the references?

Could you elaborate on how the Q methodology specifically enhances the understanding of rural tourism perceptions in this study?

The results were presented well, but unfortunately, the discussion was too short. Can you suggest specific ways the authors might extend their discussion to better highlight practical contributions for rural tourism development?