

Review of: "Climate Change and Sustainability: A Comparative Case Study"

Anastasia Nikologianni¹

¹ Birmingham City University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The topic of this article is very interesting and contemporary. The data presented for each country are a good start of basic information in relation to steps taken on sustainable management and environmental strategies. However, there is no explanation of why this comparison has been chosen and not in depth information on the case studies.

The results and conclusions are broad, and the argument of tailored approaches needs to be stronger. These two examples are a good starting point, but more scientific analysis is needed in addition to a stronger reference list.