

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Transient pseudohypoaldosteronism

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base. Transient pseudohypoaldosteronism. ORPHA:93164

Transient pseudohypoaldosteronism is a renal tubulopathy characterized by renal tubular resistance to aldosterone, characterized by hyponatremia, metabolic acidosis and hyperkalemia and manifesting as dehydration, secondary to urinary tract malformation and infections in infants.