I hope that my suggestions can be constructive for authors to improve the review presented to this journal.

As a review, I think that the number of references used are very low. Moreover, there are hundred of them that can be used to improve this review about waste water treatment and management.

No clear objectives are defined, please in the abstract or at the end of the introduction, those objectives should be delineated.

The structure of the article is adequate, but the content would be improved considering new references. As it is a review, the power of a review is a good list and consultation of references.

After presenting some methods, a limited number of methods, the discussion should be improved and as a suggestion, a table with advantages and disadvantages is desirable.

Adding graphs about the methods or the way to improve and optimize the waste water treatment can help readers to follow the article and understand it better.

The terms used along the text should be the same, please check the terminology used.

Conclusions are so generalized. In this sense, I believe that nothing new is presented in this article. Probably this is what it is expected from a review.

Surely, authors have dan a great effort but the review is weak and would be arranged before considering it for publication.
