

Peer Review

Review of: "Case of Lajpat Nagar Market in New Delhi: Creation and execution of street vendor survey for observing public health and order in a non-vending zone."

Deepika Kumari¹

1. All India Institute of Medical Sciences, New Delhi, India

The article employs a nice methodology and demonstrates contextual innovation. It provides an excellent example of conducting a street vendor survey in a non-vending zone. However, there are certain limitations that could be addressed. For instance, the geographical scope is limited, and the perspectives of street vendors are not represented. Additionally, the study could benefit from exploring potential solutions, such as designated vending spaces, to better address the conflict between law and implications. Additionally, some grammatical errors are still there, like the use of "stationer" instead of "stationary"; correct them as well.

Declarations

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.