

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Body skin hyperlaxity due to vitamin K-dependent coagulation factor deficiency

INSERM

Source

INSERM. (1999). Orphanet: an online rare disease and orphan drug data base. Body skin hyperlaxity due to vitamin K-dependent coagulation factor deficiency. ORPHA:91135

Body skin hyperlaxity due to vitamin K-dependent coagulation factor deficiency is a very rare genetic skin disease characterized by severe skin laxity affecting the trunk and limbs.