Dear author,

Although your manuscript is interesting regarding [Research Note] Dengue: Therapeutic Efforts in Mexico, there is a need to improve clarity in some items. The manuscript seeks to provide information on efforts made in Mexico for dengue control.

The section that needs to be changed is the abstract, which does not reflect scientific writing. The body should describe how the increase in cases has occurred over time, the treatments adopted so far, and how effective they are. You need to add sections that have not been done, and the One Health SMART approach is also discussed to clarify whether this was not done so that it contributed to the endemic or pandemic. (Note: This sentence is quite unclear in its original form, and I have made a grammatical adjustment for clarity, but the meaning is still somewhat unclear.)

You also need to add the most common features or symptoms experienced to accurately identify this disease. The therapy given should be accompanied by a chart, and the flow of administration and the final evaluation should also be carried out to provide more comprehensive information.

Thanks
