

Open Peer Review on Qeios

World Health Organization Adverse Reaction Terminology

National Cancer Institute

Source

National Cancer Institute. World Health Organization Adverse Reaction Terminology. NCI Thesaurus. Code C49468.

A terminology for coding clinical information in relation to drug therapy, used throughout the WHO Program by member countries and around the world by pharmaceutical companies and clinical research organisations. It has been developed over more than thirty years to serve as a basis for rational coding of adverse reaction terms.