

Review of: "Can Twitter be used to improve learning outcomes in undergraduate medical education? A pilot study"

Echu Liu¹

¹ Saint Louis University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This research addresses an exciting and meaningful topic. However, I think the preprocess of data collection needs to be written more clearly to make it more readable. Also, it is understandable that the collection of primary data is never easy. However, the size of the study sample in this study is tiny, which makes the results of statistical analysis not so convincing.