

Review of: "Analysing the conglomeration of various urban pockets through the lens of environmental design for crime prevention: A case of Kolkata"

R.B. Leksono

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This paper has strengths in terms of argumentation in each of the assumptions and research methods chosen as well as the statistical evidence that has been carried out. Once again, this research also supports the importance of spatial design in preventing crime naturally, not only increasing security and does not even require large changes or costs.