This mini-review represents useful information. While the authors want to focus on norovirus and hepatitis A, the title of the mini-review should be changed. Also, the authors did not mention the incidence of these two viruses, which caused food-borne illness, and they did not compare their incidence with that of other food-borne virus diseases (I could not find Table 1 to determine whether the incidence of each food-borne virus disease was mentioned or not). The diagnostic tests for these two food-borne diseases were not mentioned in the manuscript.
