This is an interesting paper on a fascinating topic, but I do not think it is ready for publication in an academic journal. There is almost certainly a substantial secondary literature on Amartya Sen, but almost none of it is referred to in the paper. The references to Priyono ('class material') are really not appropriate in this context. The paper is also not very well written, as can be seen from the error in the title, where the first word should be 'Economic' not 'Economics'. The author should make sure that any resubmission is carefully read and copy-edited by a native speaker of English.
