Review of: "Tweeting AI: A Machine Learning Approach for Bird Species Detection and Classification"

Suvarna Shirke, Pansambal[1]

1 Atharva College of Engineering

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The abstract should primarily address the existing issues or requirements. Additionally, it should briefly outline the methodology to be employed. The abstract must accurately represent the performance of the CNN model.A comparative analysis should be included in the literature review.

The overall organization of the manuscript is inadequate.

Statistical analysis and graphical representation are absent.

Check for the figure citations. screenshots of the code are not required.

A description of the dataset should be provided.

The citations provided are limited and incorrectly formatted.

Model validation has not been carried out.

Results should be graphical form and tabular format.

Comparative analysis is needed.

Explain the performance parameters used.