Mental state reasoning

Sharon Cox[1]

1 London South Bank University

The mental ability of a person to understand and generate theories about another's state of mind based on past or current actions, behaviours or circumstances.