Review of: "The Impact of Leadership and Talent Management: The Case of Generation Z in The Lebanese Retail Sector"

Mohamad Zahir Zainudin[1]

1 Universiti Teknikal Malaysia Melaka

Remember that the abstract serves as a condensed version of your entire article, offering a glimpse into the research without overwhelming the reader with details. It should provide enough information for readers to assess the relevance and significance of the study while encouraging them to delve deeper into the full text. Here are key components that should typically be included in an abstract:

Context and Purpose

  - Clearly state the background or context of the study.

  - Specify the research question, problem, or objective addressed in the article.

Methods:

  - Briefly describe the research design, methodology, and data collection methods employed.

  - Highlight any unique or innovative approaches used in the study.

Results:

  - Summarize the main findings of the research. Include key quantitative or qualitative results.

  - Avoid unnecessary details and focus on the most important outcomes.

Conclusions:

  - Provide a concise summary of the study's conclusions or key takeaways.

  - Highlight the significance and potential impact of the findings.

Keywords:

  - Include relevant keywords that capture the essence of the research.

  - This helps improve the discoverability of the article in databases and searches.