Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. Please reconsider whether a sampling technique (simple random sampling) can be used to collect respondents in this study, considering that researchers must have a complete MSME profile database to be able to carry out random sampling. If researchers do not have it, they will potentially encounter problems in determining respondents.
2. The researchers should include managerial and policy contributions from the findings produced (for example, for MSMEs, government, or other interested parties) in the conclusion session. Try to elaborate on the obstacles or challenges faced by MSME owners and the managerial and policy contributions.
3. The researchers can add the descriptive statistics of the respondents based on demographic characteristics (i.e., age, experience, education background, etc.) in the analysis session to enrich your discussion.
