

Review of: "Conflict resolution applications to peace studies"

Konstantinos Magos¹

¹ University of Thessaly

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This is a very interesting and well-written paper approaching the contribution of conflict resolution applications to peace studies. The paper is a deep literature review on issues of conflict resolution and peace studies, and it focuses on the significant bond between them. It includes references to many different writers and researchers from the above fields and successfully sheds light on the main points of the relevant approaches and theories. The paper is read with great interest. As the writer comes from Palestine, it would be very interesting if he could refer to some examples/practices from his own social and educational experiences.